When Sally woke up, her bedroom seemed very bright. She got out of bed and drew the curtains. Outside, the whole world was white. It was snowing. Suddenly, she heard a noise downstairs. She could hear someone in the kitchen. She got dressed quickly and ran down the stairs. She went into the kitchen. But there was no one there. Her dog, Ben, was sleeping in the corner. Then, to her surprise, she saw that the back door was slightly open. She opened the door wide and looked outside. There were fresh footprints in the snow. Sally was really worried. She remembered that she had left her handbag on the kitchen table. She checked it. But everything was still there: her passport, purse, money and keys. She decided to follow the footprints. She put on her coat, hat and boots and went outside. The footprints were very large. She followed them for a few minutes and then, suddenly, the footprints stopped ...
