I went to the USA last summer. I didn't really want to go but I was surprised – it was really cool! I went with my family and we visited the Pacific Coast. San Francisco was a very pretty city with a lot of interesting places to visit, and we went to Seattle and Portland too. Seattle used to be quite a conservative city but today it's very fashionable because of the computer industry which is very important there. My favourite place was Portland though. It's the 'alternative America'. There are lots of ethical companies and projects there. One day, I want to go and work there in my gap year.
